

Prepare before you travel

A printable companion to the separate WEB Classic HTML reading pack. Save both files; a bookmark alone is not an offline copy.

- ☐ Save the HTML reading pack in an easy-to-find local folder.
- ☐ Open the saved file and find all three passages.
- ☐ Check the translation and source record below.
- ☐ Keep personal notes separate from the Bible text.
- ☐ Print a backup if your device cannot open local HTML.

What the example includes

Mark 1:14-20 - A beginning in Galilee

Psalms 23:1-6 - A shepherd psalm

James 1:19-27 - Hearing and doing

Translation: World English Bible Classic (eng-web), eBible.org. Text acquired 2026-09-23. Scripture is public domain; the World English Bible name is an eBible.org trademark. Original editorial headings are not Scripture. Publisher footnotes are omitted; read them online when needed.

Rights record: <https://ebible.org/eng-web/copyright.htm>

The HTML file includes text and print-friendly blank note spaces. It has no audio, downloaded commentary, account sign-in, typed-note storage, or progress sync. This checklist does not grant rights to other publishers' material.

My saved file name and folder:

Test it. Keep your place.

Run this check on the device and app you will take. The result below is yours to record; it is not a claim that every device works.

-
- ☐ Enable airplane mode and turn Wi-Fi off.
 - ☐ Close the reading tab, then open the saved local HTML file.
 - ☐ Read the first and last verse of all three selections.
 - ☐ Check that text is legible; source links can wait until online.

Device / operating system / app / test date:

Result: opened offline / failed / printed backup prepared:

Last passage and verse actually read:

Next starting point / one question to keep:

When you reconnect, open bibleward.com/plans and select your passage. This pack will not mark a website lesson complete. The site uses the Berean Standard Bible; the pack uses WEB Classic, so wording may differ.

If the test fails: keep the file, try a local-HTML-capable reader, or print the text while online. Do not assume that a cached tab will remain available. No need to catch up or finish all three readings during the trip.

Guide: bibleward.com/guides/offline-bible-reading-pack-travel